DEL MAR MAIDS TO APPEAR HERE

Noted Ladies' Quartet Will Entertain Local Folks in Charming Style

The Del Mar Quartette, known for many years as the "Del Mar Maids," are to appear here on the evening of January 24 at the High School Auditorium in their delightful program of vocal and instrumental music, readings and sketch work. The Del Mar Maids are talented young ladies who can sing and play, beautiful of personality and enthusiasm and their coming here insures one of the most delightful entertainments of the present series.

The Del Mar Maids are singing maids primarily. A good ladies' quartette is a rarity indeed, and those who love the beautiful combination of four well trained voices, will do well to hear the Del Mar Program. With the Del Mar Maids, however, the vocal quartette work is but a part of their varied program. They play very well indeed and delightful combinations such as violin, cello, piano and cornet, add to the popularity of their offerings.

And then there are the featured sketches, the readings and the humorous skits in which one and all take part. And there are the musical monologues, cleverly given and the worthwhile solo numbers of the Del Mar girls. Throughout their program runs a vein of good, clean wholesome fun, which rounds out a highly enjoyable evening.

LION G. T. ORDWAY

We clip the following from Lions Year, the official organ of the Lions Club of Amarillo, Texas, where Mr. Ordway is located and a member and officer of the Presbyterian church.

In the blue grass state in the year 1896 in the little city of Marion, Kentucky there was great rejoicing on a certain day, as a little stranger had arrived, and they called him "George." Years rolled by and the next we hear of him, he has attained full manhood and with a mind of his own, has moved to the bankside of Texas, and settled in 1905 in the city of prominent "Amarillo." No man can be blamed for the country he is born in, but we believe George showed smartness in 1905. After a while we find him in the form of "Ordway Saunders," who will insure you, from hail, fire and plate glass to health, life or accident. The progress from then on by George has been one stepping stone after another until at last he has reached one of the highest positions that can come to a man, "Secretary-Treasurer of the Amarillo Lions Club." The position he has held with honor to the Club as well as to himself, he has worked for the interests and advancements of Amarillo, the Lions Club and his fellowman.

The American Legion

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT STANDS FOR

There are over one Million Members of the American Legion. There are over ten thousand Posts. This means that over one man of every five ex-service men belongs to the Legion. In Crittenden County less than one man in ten belong to the American Legion. Let's get busy and bring the membership of the ELLIS B. ORDWAY POST up to and above the average.

If these Million Men can see the advantages of belonging to the Legion this should be proof enough that the American Legion is a worth while organization.

REVIVAL AT MAIN STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The revival meeting which began Sunday at the Main Street Presbyterian church has been continued every evening at seven o'clock and will be held daily through the week. Rev. E. N. Hart, pastor of the church, is doing the preaching. The sermons are strong and well delivered, with earnest appeals to the unconverted to forsake their evil ways and lead a Christian life. Much religious interest is shown in the meetings and good audiences attend each service. The singing is under the leadership of Miss Edith Fitzpatrick of Presbury and she is assisted by a splendid choir and the singing is one of the pleasing features of the meetings. Members of other churches in the city are attending the services and assisting in the work. Much good to the church and the city will doubtless be done by the meetings.

LET'S GET TOGETHER

R. E. JAGGERS

I have heard several people talk of the great school fair held in Marion some years ago by the County Superintendent E. J. Travis. The day is pointed out as a RE-LETTER DAY in Marion and Crittenden county. More than 4000 people saw their neighbors on that day. Hundreds of school children met and engaged in contests and athletic sports on the streets of Marion. Those who attended the fair say that it universally pleased and helped folks. Similar fairs have been held in other counties and with equal success.

Last year the farmers of Crittenden county under the leadership of our County Agent, held a fair and stock show in Marion. The meeting was a great success. Some splendid stock and farm products were on display. One of the largest crowds seen in Marion attended this fair. Each farmer saw what his neighbors was doing, boys and girls, men and women received prizes for excellence of products.

Why not have this fair again next year? Why not have a school fair as well? We can have it.

We can unite all these forces and the other forces of the county and have a three day affair. The Farmers, School People and the Business Men of Crittenden county can unite and have a great time. It could be organized on the following plan:

First Day, Farmers Day—This day would be wholly in charge of the Farm Bureau and Crittenden county farmers, led by the County Agent. Farm exhibits, stock show, poultry show.

Second day, Business Men's Day—This day would be in charge of the Marion Chamber of Commerce and the Business Men of Crittenden county. Commercial Displays would feature this day with some form of entertainment.

Third Day, Educational Day—This day would be in charge of the school forces led by the County Superintendent and the school teachers. Contests in spelling, singing, speaking and athletics should feature this day.

What do you say about it? Let's Get Together.

SHALL PROHIBITION CONTINUE

By Rev. E. N. Hart, R. A., Pastor of the Main Street Presbyterian Church, Marion, Kentucky

A great fight is being waged at the present time by the Anti-Prohibition forces in an effort to introduce a measure permitting the sale of beer and wines. This is but the thin edge of the wedge to again make America wet. We find that the forces that are opposed to the prohibition law are putting forth every effort to make it appear a failure and to ridicule it before the public. They claim that there is more drinking now than there was before the law became effective but this is a bare faced lie. Great efforts are being made by many to break down the prohibition law and it is high time that all Christians awake to the peril which is facing us, and unite in immediate action to keep the law in force.

We honest and well we may, that our town and county are free from the curse of over much liquor traffic, but even granting this to be true, and it is, indeed a fact beyond dispute that we have the finest town and county in the entire state, still we are in danger and we must not sleep and allow this monstrous evil of drink to get a start, or, like a noxious weed, it will be hard to eradicate. Once let the bootlegger, the moonshiner and the illicit liquor trader get his foul, filthy foot planted on our soil the result will be widespread lawlessness and a widespread wave of crime. We must not allow the peace of our community to be destroyed by this monstrous traffic. If we love our town and our community and if we love our children, we will keep ourselves unapologetic from this curse. We must band ourselves together with the one determination to fight to the last ditch every effort that is being made to bring this evil on us. Let all citizens be united in a great effort to keep it out.

The great world war has been fought and won, and is now history and the world was made safe for democracy, but a greater fight is now before us in which every man, woman and child must enlist. This fight is almost upon us. We see evidence of it on every hand. We read in the papers of the results in other states, the increase of the traffic, the killings and all that is too terrible to mention. Shall we let it come into our midst? Let all respond with a vigorous NO. Let us make the Crittenden county line our line of defense and let all determine that over this line THEY SHALL NOT PASS. And if to achieve one does pass unnoted, let every citizen make it so unpleasant for him that he will be glad to get away and never return. And if any one of our own citizens should participate, or encourage this traffic in any way, let our mark of displeasure rest upon them and make them feel that they are undesirable citizens.

Fathers, if you love your sons help to keep this terrible evil from our midst. Mothers if within your breast beats a heart of love and devotion for your offspring, help in this great in this great fight that your boy, your girl, your home may be safe from this peril.

Oh yes, I know they say that the prohibition law is a failure and that it deprives men of personal liberty. Just the other day one of our Senators in fiery speech in Chicago to a crowd of anti prohibitionists, stated that the law was making men slaves and that the law robbed men of the liberty for which America stands. Well if we accept this line we should abolish all laws and let a man do as he please even though it be to rob us to kill, for if our law robs men of personal liberty then all must, the means that we should revert to the bad side of Bolshevik Russia where every man is a law unto himself. I am inclined to think that this speech was made to gain popularity among the masses of strong drink.

But shall we stand for this kind of thing? Shall we allow this curse to again descend upon us and again see beer, wine and other intoxicating liquor flow as freely as before the law came into force. Shall we again permit the world's greatest evil to fasten its heinous talons on the very life of our beloved land and bring men and youths down to the slough of degradation and shame, or shall we awake from our stupor and fancied security and fight, FIGHT till

LETTER FROM TOPPENISH, WASH.

Rev. W. F. Hogard,
Kind Sir:

Another year has swiftly flown and I take pleasure in remitting you $2. for the renewal of the Crittenden Press, our good old home paper, that comes weekly 3000 miles to bring us the news of the county of our nativity, boyhood, manhood, and middle-aged life. I left there Sept. 20, 1904. Therefore I have been away 17 years just. I often think of the incidents of life as they occurred then. The school days, the spelling bees, the social gatherings, the religious services and the great annual revivals. Those are all sweet in my memory but I can truthfully say that I have never regretted that I brought my family to this pleasant lovely, north-western country, the "Yakima Valley." Two of my children, Albert and Anna, have died here, while yet single. The others have all married except Reed and Marie. I have 15 grand-children living and one dead, so you see that I am helping to populate the country and support the schools.

Speaking of schools by the way, Toppenish District No. 49 is a hummer. Toppenish has two large grade buildings of eight rooms each, Lincoln and Garfield, Lincoln has two additional cottage rooms and Garfield has one, these are all occupied. Then the High School with its present addition which is being built, when completed will be a building second to none this side of Seattle. Then three miles west this district has a large new building, McKinley, and two miles north at Monte, another building accommodating 40 pupils. There are 1200 pupils enrolled in the district so you see that this a wonderful country for productiveness in most every thing.

Well we are having quite a bit of snow this winter. About Nov. 18, we had a 34 inch snow that lay on for two weeks. Then a few days before Christmas we had an eight-inch snow that is still here with nearly zero weather with fine sleighing but the sleighs have all become automobiles.

Business is getting on a firmer footing and we are expecting normal prosperity in the near future.

Wishing you and your many readers a happy and prosperous new year we are yours truly R. P. JACOBS

MISS FLORENCE ENSWORTH

The people of Marion have seldom, if ever, had the opportunity of listening to a more delightful entertainment than that given Monday evening by Miss Florence J. Ensworth at the Marion High School Auditorium under the auspices of the Coll. Lyceum Bureau of Cleveland, Ohio.

The entertainer was given a good house and when Miss Ensworth came on the stage she was greeted with enthusiastic applause, which was kept up with short intervals to the end of the program. The program consisted of readings and recitations, the entertainer stressing the prohibition question. It was a most delightful two hours of entertainment and was appreciated by everyone in the audience. Miss Ensworth left Tuesday morning for her home in Illinois, New York.

the enemy of mankind to defiled and Algeria made so dry that a fly could not moult its feet in a single drop of liquor.

Awake then, citizens of Crittenden, arise and fight. Be vigilant and if you see this traffic, report it to the officers of the law. If they will not do their duty then let them stand down and those who will take their places. Let behind them and let us all pledge ourselves to co-operate with them and stamp out for ever this menace. Let us take as a slogan "Crittenden County is our line of defense and over it THEY SHALL NOT PASS." Let us take as our aim that Crittenden county shall lead the way in Kentucky, and that it shall be said of our town and county that they are drier than the Sahara Desert. To the fight, arouse ye, put down and keep down and keep down forever the monster drink.

WHAT DOES YOUR CHILD LEARN AT HOME?

A good teacher friend of ours remarked the other day in just an every-day sort of a conversation that it had been his experience that the children who were the most polite in school were those who had had the best home training. He was right. We cannot estimate the value of the home life in making of the child the right kind of citizen. The home training is largely responsible for the habits of a man or woman in later life.

While teaching good manners and honesty and those other things which go to make the right kind of moral character, why not teach the child the habit of saving while he is young that he may be able financially to meet those obligations which he must meet if he attains to the highest standard of good citizenship?

Teach the child the habit of saving now that in after years he may know exactly what it means to be able to meet his promises.

Our Savings Department was established for that one purpose to teach boys and girls the habit of saving. We pay interest on all savings deposits twice a year. For the past year and more we have been giving particular attention to the savings accounts of our little friends. Many Crittenden county babies have accounts with us now. We have a dainty little Savings Bank book for your child. Write us, telephone or call at the bank any day and let us see if we can't "get our heads together" and plan a way by which your boy or girl may be encouraged to save his pennies and dimes against that day when he is really going to need money.

We are interested in the welfare of your child—our future success depends on the success of your children. We want your children to succeed. Had you ever thought what it might mean to have your bank know your child favorably? It is worth thinking about. Whether you have money or not we are anxious to know your child. Sometime, somewhere we might be able to render assistance to your child that no one else could give. Know your bank and know that your bank knows your child. You are planning for the future and for your children. We are planning for the future and for your children. We're doing the same thing. Let's get better acquainted. What do you say?

REVIVAL AT TOLU

Rev. W. F. Hogard is in Tolu this week with Rev. O. M. Capehart, pastor, at the Methodist church. A considerable awakening of religious interest is manifested by the congregation. The attendance is good at each service. The splendid choir is adding much to the interest of the meeting and great good is being accomplished as a result of the work.

MRS. WALKER FLANARY PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Walker Flanary, widow of the late W. T. Flanary, died Saturday, January 14, of afflictions incident to old age. She was in her 84th year and survived her husband by 16 years. Mrs. Flanary was a member of the Siloam Methodist church.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. F. Dillon, pastor of the Marion Methodist church, Rev. Robert Lear, assisting in the services. Interment at the Love cemetery.

Mrs. Flanary is survived by three children, W. H. Flanary, of this city; Mrs. Dora, Gililand, of Anguilla, Miss., and Mrs. Emma Daniel, of Fairview, Ill.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT

City Marshall A. H. Cannon is confined to his home on account of an injury to one of his eyes. A week or two ago while pounding rock on the streets, a sharp piece flew up and struck him penetrating his eyeball and inflicting a very painful, perhaps serious wound. When the wound was dressed he was able to be on duty and it was thought by his friends that the injury would soon heal. It is reported now, however, that the wound has become worse and that it may be necessary for him to go to a hospital for treatment.

FORMER PASTOR RECEIVES HIGH HONOR

Dr. W. P. Meroney, who recently resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, has accepted the Chair of Sociology in Baylor University of Waco, Texas.

To understand the full significance of this high position it would be well to note that Baylor University is the largest of the Baptist Universities. Last year its enrollment in all departments was 2298. Some of the most prominent in State and National life have gone forth from Baylor. In fact it ranks with the highest Universities in America and to be a member of its faculty, especially as head of a department, is indeed a high honor and a privilege of unequalled opportunity for service.

While the church here and community at large miss his leadership we are glad that God has opened this door of usefulness to him and to the hundreds of young men and women whose lives are plastic and who hold the destinies of the future in their hands. Here he can teach them the fundamentals of life's truest and best successes and clarify for them the most perplexing problems of modern life.

May God's richest blessings abide with him and his work.

Formal commemoration of such historic events as the adoption of the Constitution of the United States is not a bad thing if it be kept simple and sincere, says the New York Times. The temptation is to strain to say something new or startling. But as regards the Constitution the plain and well-known facts suffice. They are all that sensible Americans need dwell upon for their own satisfaction, or in their efforts to help newcomers in our country to understand the place and meaning of the Constitution. It alone makes the American people secure in their individual rights as citizens when these are imperiled by passing gusts of sentiment. If it is true, as there is much evidence to prove, that Americans are showing themselves the most conservative nation in a turbulent world, the largest cause of it lies in our federal Constitution.

A ton and a half of wood was used for every American soldier that went overseas. More than 450,000,000 board feet of timber and more than 650,000 cords of fuel wood had to be produced. In the St. Mihiel offensive 70,000,000 board feet of timber were needed every 80 days. About 81,000 men in the American army were employed in connection with the manufacture and supply of these great quantities of wood in France. Twenty-seven large mills and 60 small mills were cutting 2,000,000 board feet of lumber every day at the time the armistice was signed. With these facts in mind every American surely as a matter of patriotism should become a forest conservation man for life.

Dodging a shoe thrown at him, a groom in Syracuse, N. Y., slipped, was bumped by a locomotive, thrown back to the platform, landed on his chin and bit his tongue. The worst of it is, he probably started a debate that will last through one married life as to whether it would not have been the part of wisdom for him to have been hit with the shoe.

Inventors have made a money bag in which a gong will ring when thieves attempt to carry it away. All you have to do is press the button. However, until inventors build a money bag that will take a bandit's gun away from him, one is not going to be any readier to press the button than he is now to slap the bandit's face.

The National City bank figures out that since Columbus discovered America there has been $18,000,000,000 worth of gold mined. And since Columbus' time there have been discovered more than 18,000,000,000 ways of spending it.

Sheep at Lambing Time

Many farmers will have lambs coming on soon and proper care will save many that otherwise might be lost. During lambing time the ewes should be housed at night and watched carefully during the day so as to save the lambs. A good warm place to have the lambs drop in is absolutely essential. For this purpose a room that is entirely enclosed should be used. This prevents the winter storms from sweeping in and freezing the young lambs. During the first few days the lambs are tender and easily hurt by the cold and during that time no efforts should be spared to give them all protection possible. Exercise for ewes during the winter months is important in producing strong lambs.

The lambs must be given very close attention. If a lamb gets chilled it should be taken to the fire and put into warm water after which it should be rubbed dry and placed by the fire. Many a lamb which was thought dead from cold has been revived by this method. If a lamb is not extremely weak it may be necessary to give it a little of its dam's milk with a teaspoon. In extreme cases about a teaspoon of warm stimulant in milk will be helpful. Many have tried to revive lambs by putting them near the fire but they could not save them that way. However the method of putting them into water and after much keeping them for some little time near the fire is usually successful. At lambing time one should go into the barn and examine the sheep just before going to bed and again the first thing in the morning. While the loss of one or two lambs may not appear large yet a little later this loss would return a good profit.

Egg Laying Contest

The records of the flocks in the egg laying contest shows marked improvement this month over last month. The leader in the first group of under 50 hens is Willie Daugherty near Caldwell Springs the average number of eggs being 12.14. In group 2, 50 to 100 hens Mr. Ralph Hodge leads with an average number of eggs being 8.8, in the group of 101 and over, M. L. Kennedy leads with a 8.8 average number of eggs. The average number of eggs is found by dividing the total number of eggs by the average number of hens. The contest grows more interesting as it goes along. The importance of culling out the boarders is now becoming evident. There is money in poultry properly cared for.

Annual Farm Bureau Meeting

The annual meeting of the Crittenden County Farm Bureau took place at the Marion school building Tuesday afternoon with a fair sized crowd present. The report of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and the annual report of the County Agent. Numerous matters of business were discussed, among them the adoption of a program of work for the coming year. This will be published at an early date. Mr. James Alex Hill was unanimously elected president. Mr. J. M. Dean, vice-president and George Condit secretary. The other officers and directors remain the same with the addition of four directors at large, these being Chas. LaRue, Lester Terry, Paul Harris and Jesse Olive.

The great need of more members was strongly brought out to carry on the great work that is in progress in the county state and nation.

The meeting adjourned until the next regular meeting.

The new testing man will be in the County the week of January 23.

OBITUARY

Edwin Eugene Hopkins, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hopkins, was born October 16, 1918 and died November 8, 1921. He stayed in his earthly home three years and 22 days. Then God in His wisdom saw fit to remove him from this life. He was a fine boy, a true friend, a true neighbor, a true citizen. He was a true son of the Crittenden county. All will do for him that earthly powers could do. God called and he answered. His stay was short but he found his way into the hearts of all he met. He was a bright, true boy, low and could bring a smile to any face that was clouded with sorrow. How dark our lives seem without him but we want to be able to look up and say "Thy will O Lord, not ours." We can only trust in God and meet him in heaven.

Weep not for little Edwin for our loss is his eternal gain.
A voice is vacant in our home,
A place we loved is empty.
There is a dark void in our hearts
That never can be filled.

GOOD ROADS

SURVEY NATION'S HIGHWAYS

Accurate Measurement of America's Net of Roadways Soon to Be Made by Government.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

America's far-flung net of roadways is soon to be measured accurately in terms of mileage, cost, character of construction, improvement work and general condition by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The survey, which is the most extensive ever undertaken and the first in seven years, is to be made with the aid of state and local officials and individuals the country over, and is comparable only to the great task of taking the national census.

Nobody, in all probability, could guess today within millions of dollars what the roadways total, in dollars and cents, on the ledger of national assets. Nobody knows how many miles there are where wheels may roll. The strength and the weakness of the nation's transportation arteries likewise are unknown in detail.

When the survey is completed, all these and other facts will be known and will be available for guidance to road builders. In addition there will be abundant data to show up comparisons of costs. The well-built roads of, say, Pennsylvania can be laid, dollar for dollar and mile for mile, alongside the well-built roads of California and other states. First cost and maintenance of macadam, asphalt, concrete—every kind of road built—from one section can be matched against such costs from every other section, if desired. The way to make the dollar most effective in road work thus will be pointed out.

Rural highways as well as urban are to be included the latter embracing all roads, streets and alleys in incorporated communities of 2,500 to habitants or more. How the funds are provided for constructing and maintaining roads also will be made known. The amount invested in road machinery—so item concerning which even approximate information is lacking today—will be sought. After the information is obtained it will be kept up to date.

In undertaking the survey, the bureau requests the assistance of every unit of government doing road work in the nation; of road officials the country over; and of associations, organizations and individuals, down to the man with a fiver, having information or data on its local highway activities. As future legislation may be based on percentage of road mileage, it is pointed out that it is essential for each unit to have its total, as well as its improved, road mileage carefully and correctly recorded in the survey.

TRUCKS AND GOOD HIGHWAYS

Farmers Almost Unanimous in Declaring Principal Disadvantage in Poorly Built Roads.

Vast increase in use of automobiles is now to be depleted with motor-trucks. Their complete utility is testified to by 93 per cent of the farmers replying to the latest government inquiry.

Those same men agreed that the principal disadvantage of motor-trucks is poor roads. For about eight weeks of the year, mud or snow is so bad that trucks cannot well be used. When all the year good roads are established, agricultural use of motor-trucks will be universal.

Motor-trucks involve problems new to highways. Their tremendous loads utterly destroy roads which under horse-drawn vehicles were permanent.

Big Road Program.

The state highway commission in New Mexico has launched a big road building program with six new federal aid projects, one to cost $40,707.02, a second to cost $65,805.67, a third $55,932.87, the fourth $41,624.73, a fifth $69,444.40, and the sixth $74,194.47.

Dixie Highway Leads.

Of the 6,400 miles of roads to be constructed throughout the United States through the aid of federal appropriation, the Dixie Highway leads the list with 895 miles.

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of discussion, if not angry protest, and an unanimous warning of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but attract our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not like the six million dead and mangled independent men have come together and banded themselves. The entire nations armies, from business, and so forth, form a vast unit.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances and misapprehension of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured and right in holding that it is feasible to release them from their burden to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes to the raw material of our life, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 40 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern. Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation but the well-being of the other half depends upon them.

So long as we have nations, a large political economy will aim at a wide degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Hence, when the food supply was too far removed from the belly, like her, we shall desire our own agriculture and extend our sources of food diversity and preservation. If we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services, the farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but on the impoverished countryside exports itself, and retains intelligence only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to be bitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite herculean efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks of months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage of certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are, in truth, common problems, and those should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clerical group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Better should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dye stuffs, and so forth, as elements of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to separate it from the standpoint of economics. This is peculiar to an age of flux and change and new trials. Hence, a thing always has been so, no longer means that it is right, or always shall be so. More perhaps than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought and that it is not becoming for the receiving animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural instinct.

Prudent and artistic adjustment of production and distribution is essential, and with consumption is recognized as wise management in every business, but that of farming. Yet I venture to say, there is no other business in which it is so important to the public as in the city-dweller's that production should be more direct, and in increasing, and that distribution should be proportioned to the need. The organized farmer naturally is not but is and impulsively and in consequence, selfish and deathly accompanied by discounting price variations, because the consumer, the year pots too in the fields because of excess production, and there is a variety of the things that have been displaced to make way for the expansion of the potato acreage; next year the potato farmers move their fields on some other crop, and potatoes enter the class of luxuries, and so on.

Agriculture is the greatest and fundamentally the most important of our American industries. The cities are but the branches of the tree of national life, the roots of which go deep into the land. We all flourish or decline with the farmer. So, when we of the cities read of the present universal distress of the farmers, of a slump of six billion dollars in the farm value of their crops in a single year of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farm strikes, and demand legislation abolishing grain surpluses, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privilege. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and see what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to go back permanently to "normalcy," but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges, but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

Let us, then, consider some of the farmers' grievances, and see how far they are real. In doing so, we should remember that, while there have been, and still are, instances of purposeful abuse, the subject should not be approached with any general imputation to existing distributive agencies of deliberate intentional oppression, but rather with the conception that the marketing of farm products has not been modernized.

An ancient evil and a perennial one, is the undergrading of farm products, with the result that what the farmers sell as of one quality is resold as of a higher. That this sort of chicanery should persist on any important scale in these days of fast new integrity would seem almost incredible, but there is much evidence that it does so persist. Given as I write, the newspapers announce the suspension of several firms from the New York Produce Exchange for so-called "shorting" in Germany as No. 2 wheat, a whole shipment of goods inferior when mixed with oats, chaff and the like.

Another evil is that of inaccurate weighing of farm products, which, it is charged, is sometimes a matter of dishonest intention and sometimes of protective policy on the part of the local buyer, who fears that he may "weigh out" more than he "weighs in."

A greater grievance is that of prices. The field farmer has little or no control over the time and conditions of marketing his products, with the result that he is often underpaid for his products and usually overcharged for marketing services. The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibilities of justification. In the single instance of apples, just according to figures presented in the appendix and the appendix, the average watermelon farmer received on the average 75 cents for a melon, the railroads got 125 cents for carrying it to Baltimore and the consumer paid one dollar, leaving 25 cents for the expense of marketing and its risks as against 202 cents for gasoline and transporting. The hard annuals of farm life are redoubled with such inequalities on the credence of present prices.

Nature prescribes that the farmer's goods must be obtained within two or three months of the year, while financial and storage limitations generally compel him to sell them at the same time. As a rule other industries are in a continuous process of marketing goods for the market, they do not produce at the point and then can produce without too great injury to themselves or the consumer, but if the farmer realizes his situation, it is with disastrous consequences both to himself and to the community.

The average farmer is busy with production for the major part of the year, and has nothing to sell. The bulk of his income comes on the market at one time. Hence, the lack of storage facilities and of financial support for the farmer, and the fact that he must sell his goods through the year and dispose of them as they are currently needed. In the great majority of cases, farmers have to entrust storage to warehouses and elevators, and the financial carrying of their products to others.

Farm products are generally marketed at a time when there is a surplus of both transportation and finance, when rates and money are scarce. The outcome is many instances, is that the farmers not only sell under pressure, and therefore at a disadvantage, but are compelled to take further reductions to get terms. In order to meet the charges for the service of storing, transporting, financing, and ultimate marketing, which charges they claim are often as excessive, bear heavily on both consumer and producer and are under the control of those outside the services. It is true that they are relieved of the risk of a market slump, but the loss of their crops in a single year

HOME TOWN HELPS

"SELLING" ONE'S HOME TOWN

Work That Should Be Considered a Duty as Well as Mark of Good Citizenship.

Nowadays, before its salesmen are placed on the road by any of our larger concerns they are given a course in salesmanship. They are first made acquainted with the article they are to sell, they are given its talking points or made to see its worth and value to the consumer, and then they are allotted their territory.

Selling a town is pretty much like selling goods. You must know first of all the advantages of your town, you must be able to tell the outside world what it has in the way of advantages, and then you must dwell on those talking points. Your territory is large for any place in the world you go you can spend a few minutes "selling" your town, which means nothing else but boosting it.

Citizens should learn the great advantage to be derived from being able to point out the manifold advantages of a residence here, of telling others exactly why they prefer to live here to having a home anywhere else. The man who can talk up his town, and who does talk up his town is always admired, no matter in what part of the country he may be or in what country he is thrown. Home-town pride is the first indication of good citizenship, and people who hear you telling the merits of the place in which you live naturally take it that all the other citizens are doing the same thing, and that it is a good place in which to live or in which to do business. Start now to "sell" your town, wherever you go. Learn its advantages, learn to tell about them in an interesting way and edge right in at every opportunity and tell about those advantages. —The Labor Journal.

CANADIAN CITY LOOKS AHEAD

Example of Oshawa in Barring Narrow Lanes as Dwelling Sites Should Be Followed.

The Oshawa town planning commission has resolved that in future subdivision plans with frontages of less than 45 feet should be rejected. Oshawa will be fortunate if it succeeds in controlling the future development of its suburbs, since according to the enlightened ideas of the commission. The town has already a city population and, as a growing industrial center, will spread beyond its present boundaries.

Many cities find it too late to remedy conditions which could have been forestalled by a little foresight and public spirit. Private greed, unopposed by public authority, has degraded the majority of city dwellings of a healthful allowance of light and ventilation, to say nothing of garden space by crowding the houses together, even in the midst of the business districts where land would be the cheapest commodity in sight but for real estate manipulation. If Oshawa will continue the policy of its town planning commission it will be an example and a reproach to other cities which have neglected their opportunities. —Toronto Globe.

Community Garages in Duluth

Community garages, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, have been introduced in Duluth, Minn., which shows some decided advantages over the usual individual garage. With the aid of good architecture and landscape gardening the structures add to the appearance of the neighborhood and back yards are left free for gardens and playgrounds. A saving is made in the cost of constructing buildings and driveways, and the heating problem is simplified. A single garage heats all the rooms most economically and all rooms are kept at a minimum temperature of 40 degrees even in the severest winter weather. There is a solid wall between each group of four rooms. The other partitions are of concrete in a height of three feet and of galvanized wire netting the rest of the way to the ceiling. Fire construction is of solid concrete blocks set in place and cement joints.

Coal Saving Plan

Coal economy is one to be regarded and the following method of saving fuel has been found valuable and likely for use in an open fire. First burn the coal ashes which are usually thrown away as worthless. When there is a sufficient quantity, add to them an equal amount of small coal, then pour on a little water and mix with a shovel. Use this composition when dry for placing in the top of the back of the fire. It will burn brightly and pleasantly and add a little dust will remain unburned.

Fire Alarms for Kiddies

Men to send in a fire alarm was one of the subjects of discussion at the "fire prevention" at the University of Michigan. One hundred persons received this instruction as well as other advice for fire prevention. The use of hand fire extinguishers was taught, with containing the dangers and methods of the fire alarm, and the use of the fire alarm, and the use of the fire alarm, and the use of the fire alarm.

RUNTY ANIMAL UNPROFITABLE

Underbred and Undeveloped Animals Usually Caused by Improper Care and Poor Food.

Niggardly methods of feeding and caring for farm live stock are unprofitable. This is one conclusion resulting from an inquiry conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture into the causes and prevention of runtliness among farm animals. Seventy-five per cent of underbred and undeveloped animals, according to a summary of more than 700 opinions advanced by livestock owners are due to inferior breeding, inadequate or unsuitable food, and pests such as parasites and insects.

The records in the better care of better stock and the rest of this remedy in the opinion of practical farmers is much cheaper than the expense of continuing to raise underbred and slow-maturing domestic animals. "Better raise one good cow than two poor ones—a rule is nothing but common sense all its life." This opinion, which is typical of many others, is from a Michigan dairyman. A thrifty New Englander sums up sentiment on this topic with the remark: "I find I cannot cheat the animal without cheating myself."

HIGH-PRODUCING DAIRY COWS

To Increase Productiveness of Herd It Is Necessary to Begin With Individuals.

Increasing the productiveness of a dairy herd through selection must begin with the individual as a unit. Even with the best performance records are noted to a bull backed by a line of high-producing ancestors. Even this will not guarantee offspring equal to their parents in productiveness since the law of chance operates to make results uncertain. However, the average will be as good as their ancestors and some will exceed their ancestors' record. The best practice is to begin with the best individuals.
